In addition to the assignments on Grammar and Communication that were in NEF, there were exercises on the practice of Vocabulary by a separate page - a different textbook structure and new contexts to old topics and grammar. Modern realities and technologies Compared to the New English File in the new third edition of the English File textbook many tasks are designed in the context of modern technology. The authors concluded that in the 10 years since the release of the previous textbook, the whole world has moved to their smartphones, tablets, electronic readers and others with them and finally moved into virtual and online space. I think they are in many ways right!) I live so precisely in a laptop, and rest in a smartphone. Many students watch the same picture. And, of course, I use it: homework is often sent and received by email; In the lessons we use Google search for information or examples of word use; we're looking at themed apps for phones and tablets. For example, when we pass the topic of money in the textbook, we study mobile programs to account for personal finances, analyze their functionality, compare, download, test.
